About the Event:

The Department of Aeronautical Engineering conducted a career guidance program on Soft Skills for placement success on 16th December 2024 at the AE Seminar Hall. The session was led by Dr. Loganathan V., CEO of ISO UNIV, Bangalore, and was attended by 85 students from various semesters. The primary objective of the seminar was to emphasize the importance of soft skills in shaping successful engineering professionals. Dr. Loganathan highlighted essential competencies such as effective communication, teamwork, leadership, emotional intelligence, time management, and adaptability, which are crucial for thriving in both academic and professional environments. Through engaging anecdotes, real-life scenarios, and interactive activities, Dr. Loganathan kept the audience actively involved.

He stressed that while technical knowledge forms the foundation of an engineer's career, soft skills are equally vital in interviews, workplace dynamics, and career advancement. Students were encouraged to step out of their comfort zones, develop confidence, and cultivate a growth mindset. The session concluded with a Q&A segment, where students posed questions related to personality development, career planning, and industry expectations. The seminar was coordinated efficiently by Mr. Albert Allen D Mello, Assistant Professor, AE. Feedback from students was overwhelmingly positive, with many
